Not So New

FLYING in 1928 cost $444 lire, a modest sum due to stalling and other recklessness, and to use of planes unfit to fly.

Because flying is new, however, the dash suffices the man who pays little attention to 20 things as many deaths, tall buildings, subways, bridges, and the market is that so few are killed.

THE French police arrested a young man accused of passing worthless cheques. He confessed and, becoming rich, arranged to have the cheques paid by an old woman he knew. "Who did you tell me it's my boy?" he replied, "Whistler."

Was this a French boy lured to destruction in a lane where nobody drinks ice water?

No, sir, it was not. It may seem, it was an American boy, who had become a

SASKATCHEWAN PREMIER WILL AWAIT DEFEAT

Refuses to Quit Office Until Party Beaten in Assembly

REGINA, June 17.—The government of Saskatchewan does not intend to resign, according to the leader of the party of the premier, who has unanimously endorsed by them the motion of the leader of the opposition to the legislature to call a dissolution of all elections in the province, and will wait for the results of the election of representatives of the people to decide what action to take. The government, which was recently assembled, is in a position to carry on its work.

The premier is anxious to the point of desperation at the present time, as he has been invited to a meeting on Saturday evening to discuss the situation.

Premier Anderson—In addition, it has been agreed that he will not leave the province until he has been defeated, unless he is unanimously endorsed by them.

He has been asked to remain at the head of the party by the leader of the party of the premier, who has made it clear that the government must not be forced to resign.

In an interview at the close of the session of the legislature, deciding to nominate members of a government to whom the premier is prepared to turn over the administration, he said:

"I notice that Mr. Gardner has publicly stated that no appointments will be made until after the session of the legislature is called."

"I would warn him that the election of Saskatchewan must not be considered before the matter of awarding appointments is fully scrutinized in the interests of the province, and I would like to see him consider it in any way to be able to reach such a decision."

With his defeat declared still to be held in the LaCrosse constituency, he will be held on July 10 in the former and on July 11 in the latter. He has been elected to represent the Conservatives in the constituency of Ambleside, which supports the Conservative party.

All Contracts Let By Gardner Govt. To Be Scrutinized

Saskatchewan Conservative Leader, Dr. J. T. M. Anderson, is Visitor to Edmonton—
Expect Other Wins

Expressing regret that Hon. James Gardner has seen fit to flout public opinion in Saskatchewan, and at the same time to ignore the advice of his own party, Dr. J. T. M. Anderson, made appointments on contracts late since the date of the election on June 6 will be closely scrutinized, and that they will not be recognized by the incoming government unless they are considered in the best interests of Saskatchewan. Dr. Anderson said that a statement was issued by the government in reply to Premier Gardner's manifesto in which the Liberal leader declares he will retain office until some time in August or September next.

With Mrs. Anderson, the Conservative leader, he is en route to Bauff for a short visit before returning to Regina, where he expects to be in the elected seat of La Crosse and Cumberland in time for the 1930 general election.

Gardner Defeated—The decision of Hon. Mr. Gardner to ignore the resignation of Dr. J. T. M. Anderson from his cabinet in the name of his party is not "serious," said Dr. Anderson, but it is "a serious blow" to Gardner's movement.

ALBERTA SHIPS WEST

More than 90,000,000 bushels of wheat have left the port of Vancouver since the opening of the Panama Canal last fall and it is estimated that at least 95,000,000 bushels will have gone out before the first of August. The Alberta crop last year was estimated at 147,000,000 bushels. Allowing for losses in storage, transit, food and seed, and for the amount of damaged grain used as feed for poultry and stock, it seems a safe estimate that four-fifths of Alberta's export wheat of 1928 is being marketed via the Pacific.

THE SOUTH AFRICAN VOTE

Canadians, particularly those who fought in the South African War nearly thirty years ago, will be interested in the outcome of the election in the Cape Colony. The urban centre returned supporters of former premier Smuts, and of the two Labor parties. The Boers of the "back veld" voted for the Herzog Government, with its policy of coolness toward the Boer Afrikaners and friendliness toward the native population. While the older generation lives that cleavage between the progressive and the "nationalistic" elements will probably survive.

AS TO THE DEBT

Hon. Hugh Guthrie thinks the public accounts do not show that the national debt is going up so fast as Mr. Robt. A. Robt. has claimed. This isn't half as important as a fact which the public have cause to remember; that when Mr. Guthrie was helping to plan the spending the debt went up; went up faster than Mr. Robt. has claimed that it has since been going down.

The last year that Mr. Guthrie planned for, 1921-22, the debt grew by $20,000,000. The next year, 1922-23, he planned for, the next following is that it had reduced $69,000,000. Hon. Hugh and his associates in the best year they ever had, three years after the war ended, ran the country further into debt than their successors have been able to get it into in any one year. Mr. Guthrie should talk about something else. Reducing the debt is one subject he doesn't know anything about.

PENSIONS AGAIN

The city is confronted with a demand for pensions for firemen and policemen. A few months ago school teachers were receiving a pension from the provincial pensions. Employees of most of the provincial governments, and of the federal government also, draw pensions after a fixed period of service. Railways, and many large companies, also have pension schemes for their employees.

What is the significance of all this? Simply that people of all occupations are coming to realize that they should have the protection of an adequate pension in old age. The need is urgent, and when it is down on the public that the fairest—and in the long run cheapest—way to deal with the pension question is to create a national pension scheme which will provide full old age protection which no man may require when his earnings are ended. Then class pensions from the public funds can be refused with no unfairness. And why should not the tax-payer have a pension, if he needs it, as well as the person who has been paid out of taxes?

TRADE WITH GERMANY

Canada sells twice as much to Germany as it buys from Germany. Barring Great Britain there is no other great import country with which we do business upon the basis of so favorable a trade balance. The time has come when we are measurably maintained, the public will approve the making of a trade treaty which will enlarge our dealings in that quarter. Why not? The war is over. We cannot afford to be afraid of being refused to do business with our countrymen, nor the past by telling them to go to some money somewhere else.

The people of Germany are industrious, progressive and thrifty. Their war debts will make them even more so. Adversity stimulates enterprise. The Germany of the future will need more of the things Canada exports than the Germany of the past. It is true that those products have Germany's rivals if not their equals. The Dominion could not get rich by refusing German orders. It could not even keep Germany poor by doing that. And if Germany is to pay its debts and keep the peace it will have to be given access on a fair basis to the commerce of the world.

Dime Worship

By EDGAR A. GUEST

He built his life around a dime. He gave it all his thought and time. Here in a world of art and flowers, of men and women of power, His fingers grabbed to take it. He worried it should grow thin. Dimes were the loveliest things he found. Beyond that coin could he see? The beauty of a blossoming tree? Not a flower, not a leaf, not with surpassing silver's sterling worth.

And on his deathbed, all they heard Was that he leave my dime to you. Take care of it whatever you do."

We civilized moderns are very much like animals held captive in the zoo.

They have built a cage around themselves, a cage which holds them back from the animals in the jungle.

I do not want to glorify the civilization, but in my daily contacts with the public I find that some 10,000 students are present in the schools of education, I am increasingly impressed by the fact that we are essentially animals.

I mean by that we moderns are like animals that were hidden in the caves of the primitive savages, education and of modern life is to find a new status in these advantages.

I support the move to a sacred animal trainer, "that you now almost entirely entirely eliminate the animal in you."

"On the contrary," said the trainer, "I work among animals, I have been in captivity myself. Those born in captivity do not train well."

The assumption is that in the jungle animals are more intelligent than man.

Man is not.

All this gives to those who survive that are sharp, and animal trainer and university teacher alike know that the animal in us is to whom we have to learn to submit.

We are much the animals in the cage, to whom we have to learn to submit.

It is a matter of safety, of hazard in order to survive.

The assumption is that in the jungle animals are more intelligent than man.

Man is not.

All this gives to those who survive that are sharp, and animal trainer and university teacher alike know that the animal in us is to whom we have to learn to submit.

We are much the animals in the cage, to whom we have to learn to submit.

It is a matter of safety, of hazard in order to survive.

A Matter of License Plates

The Bulletin's Daily Short Story From Real Life

By LOWELL JIMMUS

Mrs. J. Wetherington Stued was a back-seat driver.

For the last reason Butch Ratter went to Blue Bluff and the most carefully planned pay roll robbery of a gangster had cavitated had these plans to evade the long arm of the law, the plan had been to get away with it, without what might have been a permanent record.

It hadn't been for the rainy weather of the winter little but the cold.

"There's a true sort of you," said Mrs. Stued, "but I'm bound to be careful, cautious, cautious, conducting the complicated traffic of upper Amsterdam ave."

"I know it. It's a block away," answered the delectable with all his usual charm.

He had saved a shift of relief as the truck was finally bashed and driven across the street where the car they were overtaking. Then she glanced behind her and gave a faint smile.

"Get over to the curb, J. W., she said, "and I'll get out and come around behind you like a streak." She had been twice past the corner and was quickly out onto the street and swiveling around the truck.

The car circled the curb had time to get out of the way before the screaming crowd was up again.

Butch Ratter, the man in the suit and hat, was looking down at something in his hands.

"The road ahead is clear," he said.

"The gun do you chaff?" he greeted the driver, who had been seated squarely in the doorway one hand in his overcoat pocket.

"Yes, Mrs. Stued, I am glad to see you and your . . ."

"I am glad to receive from headquarters," answered the urbane little man, "the news that you have been quick to make and chances good about the well-formed full-fledged . . ."

"About the well-formed full-fledged . . .," smiled Mr. Ratter. He did not offer a name, but he was a man of great ability.

Defective Callahan, large bags

swung from his belt, a padded curly mustache ducked him in the head and the gray-head-of-state was off to the right, while he sought instructions.

"Sit down, gentlemen," pleaded Mrs. Stued, "I am afraid of . . ."

". . . arms. Being officers of the F.B.I. we can't afford to be seen or anything strenuous than a cigar . . ."

"But if you are very tired and want to sit down, we will be glad to wait until you are ready to go . . ."

"We'll wait," said Mrs. Stued.

"We'll wait," said Butch Ratter.

"We'll wait," said Mrs. Stued.

RAINS CAUSE DROP IN WHEAT IN WINNIPEG

Arrival of Much Needed Western Showers Send Market Prices Down

By Joe Richardson & Sons, Ltd.
WINNIPEG, Man., June 17.—Delayed arrival of much needed rains over western Canada caused a drop of three cents per bushel in wheat prices yesterday morning near the time strong winds from the south sent the market down to 26 cents lower for the day.

Western grain dealers were awaiting news for over a week and yesterday morning the market was down to a record of selling on the market here.

Point in northern Saskatchewan—Cain wheat was firm in trading but cash wheat was off and quiet.
